

Just Positive Energy Planning Processes

2024-2026, European Partnership Horizon Pillar II

Budget
17.1 MNOK
over three years

Recent studies highlight that political incentives for low-carbon transitions typically exclude vulnerable urban areas and groups. It may cause a delay in urban decarbonisation and exacerbate societal inequalities.

JUST PEPP aims to empower vulnerable areas by investigating how Positive Energy Districts (PEDs) can be planned for, with and by the residents.

JUST PEPP will achieve novel solutions for energy efficiency and energy flexibility in existing buildings and urban transport through citizen-centric initiatives geared toward well-being and inclusiveness.

JUST PEPP draws on expertise from a cross-disciplinary environment with researchers, local policymakers, non-profit organisations and practitioners.

